STUDIOLAB

This 4,800-square-foot summer residence was designed as a retreat for a longtime client's growing family—offering both a sanctuary and a gathering place away from city life. The design emphasizes fluid transitions between indoor and outdoor living, with generous spaces for entertaining and intimate corners for retreat. At its center, an open kitchen and dining area serves as the home's social hub, balancing function and hospitality. Every element of the layout was crafted to balance privacy with togetherness. The result is a modern, welcoming haven where the family can gather, entertain, and create lasting memories.
